Dear Incoming Seventh Grader and Family,

Summer is upon us and we hope you are looking forward to the vacation. In order to keep certain academic skills fresh, we have prepared assignments for you to work on over the coming weeks. Attached to this letter, please find:

- 1. Summer Reading Form – One reading book on your child's reading level is required for summer reading.
- 2. Seventh Grade Suggested Reading List
- 3. Study Island Instructions – For review of skills and extra credit

Please have your child bring the reading form in on the first day. Your child's English teacher will collect this. If you need a new copy of any of these handouts, they are available on our district's website under William J. Johnston Middle School. They are also available in our office.

Summer Reading Webpage - We have included our suggested reading list for seventh graders. You can also visit our summer reading wiki at www.wjjmsummerreading.wikispaces.com. This site contains lists of suggested books and book trailers to tell you a bit about the book. Some trailers were even created by some WJJMS students! While only one book is required this summer, we hope you find many fantastic books to read!

E-books - Check out WJJMS's collection of e-books. Access WJJMS's e-books by going to <https://wbb02966.follettshelf.com>. Log in using your school username and password (what you use to log in to school computers). Select the book you want to read and check it out. You have the option to read online, or if you have an ipad or an android tablet, you can download the book to your device (meaning you do not need an internet connection to access). Simply download Follett Enlight (free), open the app and enter the following: wbb2966 your school username and your school password. Please email Michele Lane, the library media specialist with any questions regarding the use of e-books at mlane@colchesterct.org.

Cragin Memorial Library is offering a fun summer reading program. Please visit the library, or go to their website for the details. www.colchesterct.gov.
